UNFINISHED BUSINESS

SAKAI PARK CONCEPT PLAN: Commissioner Kinney introduced tonight’s Sakai Park agenda topic with the prelude that nothing will be decided tonight and furthermore that the public will decide what if anything is done at Sakai Park. Senior Planner Perry Barrett recapped how the Sakai Park concept plan effort endeavored to include as many of the top ten community ideas gathered during the 2016 public process as possible. The final concept plan from Jones & Jones was presented in December 2017. Perry Barrett presented through Power Point the site constraints in regard to wetland buffers and storm water management due to low permeability of the soil; leaving the amount of developable land at Sakai Park to 2.1 acres. Major takeaways from the comments about the Jones & Jones concept plan included: fact checking data ahead of any funding decisions, cooperative agreements in regard to decreasing parking and increasing non-motorized access, encourage dialog with user groups, look at ways to decrease noise at Highway 305 and to protect and preserve wildlife and natural site components. The highest ranked comment favorably supported the Jones & Jones concept plan, open space and passive uses were expressed secondly and third was mention of mountain biking.

John Benjes, President of Bainbridge Island Mountain Biking Club and coach for the Gear Grinders Mountain Bike Team asked the Board to consider how mountain biking can be included in the development of Sakai Park, perhaps even on the adjacent city parcel.

Marsha Kilbane said that due to the age of our population here, an indoor walking rink would be highly beneficial for older people.

Tom Kilbane asked for clarification on the location of the city property adjacent to Sakai Park, and whether the concrete building would be staying, which it is. He asked if the Park District will be putting trails in to which the answer was yes. He inquired as to if the pond would be staying, which it is. He then asked for clarification on what area would be developed, and Senior Planner Perry Barrett showed on the map where building would be allowed which is no more than 2.1 of the 6.1 useable acres. The life estate was reviewed, upon death or long-term absence of the occupant it reverts to the Park District. Tom Kilbane inquired about the Sound to Olympics Trail and Executive Director Terry Lande addressed this saying there is an ongoing conversation currently about moving the trail into the park.

Rob Miller spoke to say that he voted for the Sakai bond measure and was alarmed at the plan being proposed, saying he doesn't see a need for development, but would rather preserve land. He does not see the need for an indoor athletic field facility as put forth in the concept plan.

Marcy Burkel said she voted for the Sakai bond because she lives in that area and hoped to use a park without having to get in a car and drive and noted that there are a lot of people who will be able to walk or bike to it. She hopes that Sakai Park will not be built up as she would rather that it be preserved.

Richard Kurse mentioned a list of cost ranges associated with each item in the concept plan and said that if you add them all up it is an expensive proposition at 18-25 million dollars and asked how the Park District expects to pay for them. He also had concerns about information being available to the public, as he only recently received an invitation to review the plan. It was noted that the Park District website has been kept up to date and that emails have been sent to the Park District registration software database and to those people who have previously attended any Sakai planning process meeting.

Executive Director Terry Lande clarified that the original bond measure did not specify that there would be no development on the land. He said the point of the concept plan is to find out what it would cost to build and also operate the top ten ideas gathered during the public process. It was noted that the Jones & Jones concept plan shows the maximum amount of buildable space.

Joan Chandler said that she expected Sakai Park to be open space and trails, she believes it is important for people in the downtown area to be able to walk to an area with hiking trails and is also concerned about the traffic in the area and minimizing the amount of people who will be driving there.

Commissioner Swolgaard mentioned that at this time the board has committed to nothing for Sakai Park other than trails, which staff is in the process of designing and permitting.

Susan Johnson said that this is the first time that dollar amounts have been viewed by the public and that perhaps the reality of price tags is turning public opinion to doing less rather than more development.

Executive Director Terry Lande said that the Park District is keeping in mind the School District master plan.

Kirk Robinson commented that he believes the concept plan did a good job of figuring out what could exist rather than what will the Park District do with the site as a community. Jones & Jones created the concept plan by using the list of ten top community ideas gathered during the 2016 community process. The Park District needs to consider a pool replacement as a part of this process. The Board agreed that any new pool would remain at the current Bainbridge Island Aquatic Center facility. He asked that the Park District make sure they do a detailed analysis of what is needed and what it will cost to build and maintain. At the first public process meeting there were about 80 separate uses for Sakai that people came up with and he urged the board to not forget this list during the concept plan process. If structures are put in, can solar power and geothermal heat be considered? He noted that he liked the idea of locating any buildings in the southwest corner of Sakai Park, which would allow any two-story buildings to appear lower in height from Madison Avenue.

MEETING ADJOURNED for a short break at 6:48 pm and RECONVENED at 6:55 pm.

HIDDEN COVE PARK DOCK: Park Services Director Dan Hamlin thanked and credited Senior Park Manager David Harry and Senior Planner Perry Barrett for all their work on the Hidden Cove Park dock project. Executive Director Terry Lande noted that this has been a ten-year project and the onsite work only lasted one week. There was only one change order for $2,000 and it ended up saving a cedar tree and there were no delays. Dan Hamlin showed a video staff made documenting the project. The park is open but there will be additional work for ADA trail access and a self-contained restroom will be added next year. Terry Lande noted there will be a ladder and a throw ring installed on the dock. There are no cleats on the deck as it is not meant for people to tie up their boats, but rather for swimming and human powered watercraft. Signage including an interpretive sign will be added. Publicizing this accomplishment was discussed and audience member Frank Stowell noted this project as an example of how competent the Park District is.
