*Staff do not need to wear mask when working indoors if you're fully vaccinated and not around customers, volunteers, or other members of the public or while working alone indoors; for example, in an office with a closed door or as a delivery driver with no face-to-face interaction with others.

All people over age five, regardless of vaccination status, have to wear a mask in public indoor settings such as grocery stores, malls, gyms, community centers, health care settings, schools, day care centers, and adult group homes. There are some exceptions such as:

- When outdoors. However, DOH strongly recommends that all people, regardless of vaccination status, wear a mask in crowded outdoor settings. Examples include sporting events, fairs, parades, and concerts, where it's harder to maintain physical distance from people outside of your household.
- At a small indoor gathering in a private residence
- While playing, coaching or officiating indoor sports (but masks are required on the sidelines and in team meetings, and this exception does not apply to indoor gyms or other fitness facilities, such as dance, yoga, and martial arts facilities)
- While swimming or taking part in other water sports or recreation.
- While actively engaged in a performing arts performance.
- While showering, bathing or engaging in other personal hygiene or grooming activities that require removal of face coverings;
- When necessary to confirm a person's identity.

At BIRC, mask will be required for all programs or activities except racket sports, as long as they can maintain social distancing or in a league match; group exercise in the gym, with all doors opened; and outdoor spaces where social distancing can be maintained.
